I do this using the XAML as my "Model View Presenter" so that the View is not reliant on things like DependencyInjection, etc. What I would like to do is use the bindng to trigger a search when the user types into the text box, much in the way the contents of a ListBox are bound to a Collection (not in the normal list structure, but a series of objects based on the text search). I suppose I could hand build a command for this in the ViewModel but I'm wondering if there are any standard ways to do this? e.g. is there any existing framework that does this? Is this doable with data templating? A: Can't you just add a callback as the way for the user to respond to the event, and which will do a query of the items and trigger the binding as a result of the query? The Copenhagen Trial: a randomized, double-blind, placebo-controlled efficacy trial of cefotaxime in the treatment of proven or presumed bacterial meningitis in adults. This report describes the design of a multicentre, randomized, double-blind, placebo-controlled efficacy trial of cefotaxime in the treatment of adults with proven or presumed bacterial meningitis. The study is designed to include a good proportion of patients with infections due to the most common meningeal pathogens in Denmark. Patients are treated for 14 days. At the time of analysis, at least 79 patients in each treatment group have been followed up for a minimum of 28 days. Randomization will be stratified according to age (less than or greater than or equal to 50 years) and presence or absence of cranial nerve palsies. Analyses will include a comparison of clinical outcomes and relapse rates at 28 days between the two treatment groups. Adverse events will be
